Jessica Kingsley Publishers. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Nursing and Multidisciplinary Care of the Mentally Disordered Offender, David Robinson, Alyson M. Kettles, Mary Addo, Tom van Erven, Roger Almvic, 'This book is unique in attempting to examine the role of the professional forensic nurse and explore the multi-professional boundaries within mental health. Its contents provide an insight into the cross-cultural thinking and the complexities and conflict of the forensic nurse. It attempts to define this complex role within mainstream psychiatric nursing and puts forward strong arguments that forensic nurses require different and advanced nursing skills. Using empirical data, the contributors within the book have provided a strong platform in promoting a better understanding of Forensic Nursing, both nationally and internationally. The issues of training and multi-professional collaboration remains central to the care for the mentally disordered offenders. This book is highly recommended to all health care practitioners involved in the field of forensic medicine.' - Journal of Psychiatric and Mental Health Nursing 'Robinson and Kettles have assembled a collection of 20 articles on the subject, conveying the perspectives of 30 contributors from seven countries and offering theoretical views, as well as practical consideration. There is also an extensive section...
