O. , 2007. LC Number: KF26 . E6 2007 OCLC Number: (OCLOC)133679247 Subject: Global warming -- Government policy -- United States. Excerpt: . . . 9 rection. We should be able to find the most realistic and attainable path that averts negative impacts on our economy and strengthens our national security by decreas-ing our thirst for imported fossil fuels from the most volatile areas of the globe. I believe we can find the right course at the right cost. The U. S. comprises only four percent of the worlds population yet emits 20 per-cent of the worlds carbon dioxide, its time our response to this crisis become pro-portional to our nations contribution to the problem. Because of the lack of any movement on the part of the United States, two years ago, I accepted the co-chair-manship of the International Climate Change Taskforce, or ICCT, which consists of a group of respected scientists, business leaders, and elected officials from eight in-dustrialized and developing nations. Our Taskforce report, Meeting the Climate Challenge , published in January of 2005, was the culmination of close to a years work across oceans and partisan lines - each of you has been given a copy. As you can see, the Report recommends ways to involve the worlds largest economies in the effort, including the U. S. and major developing nations, to ensure that dangerous climate change can be avoided. In truth, the U. S. has given the major developing nations like China and India a get out of jail free card. The U. S. position has been to say that...
